BIOGRAPHY

Ana Bulnes is a bold and visionary Latin artist from San Pedro Sula, Honduras, and the first female Honduran music producer breaking barriers in a male-dominated industry. Now based in the UK, she blends Amapiano, Afro-Latin, reggaeton, and traditional Latin rhythms into a sound that is vibrant, global, and emotionally charged. From her earliest performances in Honduras, Ana knew she wanted full creative independence.

Her journey has taken her across continents—studying music production in Argentina, sound engineering in Denmark, and completing a bachelor's degree in Music Recording and Production at the University of West London. These experiences shaped her into a self-sufficient artist whose music is driven by the mission to heal through connection.

In 2020, Ana released her EP Closet, featuring the empowering anthem “Loco” and the heartfelt “Roatán”, a tribute to her homeland. Two years later came Aleatorio, an EP brimming with danceable rhythms and themes of empowerment, promoted on major Honduran TV and radio platforms, including Hoy Es Tu Día. That same year, she appeared on Sol, Playa y Música, Honduras’s first music reality show, showcasing her ability to collaborate, innovate, and inspire.

Ana’s artistry is equally visual—her branding embraces the unicorn as a symbol of magic, individuality, healing, and colour. On stage, she’s dynamic and captivating, performing across London’s most iconic venues, including: The Engine Rooms, Libertine, Tamesis Dock, Boxpark Wembley and Shoreditch, ATM London, Paradise Club and La Feria Festival at Alexandra Palace. Collaborating with world-class talent, Ana has built a long-term creative partnership with Italian producer Enrico Rogas, shaping a signature sound that merges her Latin heritage with forward-thinking production.

She is now working with Kayzee, a London-based producer who has collaborated with Shenseea, to pioneer a fresh Latin-Amapiano fusion—a distinctive sonic journey that positions her as one of the most exciting emerging voices in global Latin music. Ana Bulnes is unapologetically Latina, rhythmically rich, and creatively fearless—an artist determined to connect cultures, challenge norms, and leave a lasting mark on the international music scene.
